I shall leave this matter to the sense of public opinion, which always rights an injured man in the end; i shall leave it to the feeling of the honer and the end; the leave it to the local property of the control of the court. I shall leave the honer to attend here and her me. (Applanes). These papers are sent into the court. One thing will strike every person as most remarkable. (Appliance.) Under these circumstances I came to America, and under no other. Not a creditor in England has written a word or syllable in which he has called me an insolvent fugitive. I have lettere from persons to whom I am nadobod wishing me success and prosperity, and I have not had a werl of complaint from any lauman beig. It is just to the representatives of Lord Yarborough to say that they have not a myster and the professional enemies. In may absence in Brussels, while I was strengting to make the best arrangement I could for every one who had a claim upon me, this cabal destroyed my prespects in England. So ment, gentlemen, for that part of my history. But there is one matter to which I bug the series attention of the members of the bar and the public. It is said in this libel, which I am told they have had and in this libel, which I am told they have had and the public.

is one master to which I bog the serious attention of the members of the bar and the public. It is said in this libel, which I am told they have handed much the Court, that I was guilty of unprofessional condect at the bar—the other matter having strictly to do with the social relations of private like—in the transaction with Mr. Ingram. Mr. Ingram was proprietor of the London Illus rated News. I had not known much of him until I was returned to Parliament. He was at that time finemer for Boston. I was retained as counsel by a man whose name may probably be known to some—Mr. Vincent Scully, the member for Cork—to prosecute an action against Mr. Ingram, charging him with m srepresentation in the meeting to the dates and circumstances. They are very short. They have been given, every word of them, with the knowledge of this man who writes this libel against me in the Law Magazine, and he suppressed every word of them, with the knowledge of this man who writes this libel against me in the Law Magazine and suppressed the written explanation. I succeeded for Mr. Scully in the case. The case was secuted); and he then published this their grains. The case was secuted; and is succeeded in getting a verdict only for the sum of three numbered on material. An ow tried was moved for, and with us in England it takes about twelve mentals to get a case retrie in order to hang him, because he stood by the old hag of his country, and for no other crime. (Applauxe.) Sir, there are influences in England which would hang individuals there. They make no allowance whistoeyer for liberality of opinion; and it is only in the last number of bleakeeo? Mogazine, speaking of such mon as Mr. Cohden, Mr. Cladistone and Mr. Bright, that they are ranked with the reacaldom of England. I cut appreciate what may have been the motives on the other side for even the persecution of Mr. James. I can suppose that he—baving been mixed up with English pointer, having run and boan successful as member of Parlament, having he'd the Recordership of Erighton, having aspired to other, and knawing, as I well do, that it must have cest him immense sums of money in order to obtain anything there—may have met with pecuniary embarras ments; and I have mode abt he did. Have no doubt that he was mixed up with politics, mull his expenses became no commonstical twas impossible to extract himself. I understand that the law of imprisonment for doth prevails in England, and I can appreciate how far he may have been made the object of an unjust persecution; and, instead of being treated with that liberality to which he was undoubtedly entitled, he may have been supplied by the very allegance that have been thrown across the water in order to pursue him with vindicitive-ness, wime perhaps he eight to statid before us unimprecised. I hold to this, and every monther of the bar and the practice, and we are anxious for the purity of the courts, for their casacity. We are interested in the great question of judicial parity, and I trust and hope that there is no individual here who will stand up here and advocate ever brokeness to procession and procession that the gentlemen of the bar would be guilty of or advocate at least anything like my farmant and honerable standing at the bar and honerable stonding of the purpose of done justice, and which, how ever, not being seconded, and not perfusion that the gentleme of t

Resolved, That, although no explanation from Mr. James was measure, the explanation given by him has been entirely satisfactory to the bar, and should be ratisfactory to the Court: that in our spinson there is no occasion for any further action on the part of the Court in relation to the spillcation made to it.

renther action on the part of the Court in relation to the application made to it.

The resolution was seconded.

E. F. Sustrant—Mr. Chairman, I beg leave to avail myself of the offer made by Mr. James, not to put him to further pain, but rather that the matter may be explicitly understood by this meeting and by the public in the same that I understood it, though from the connection of his remarks it might hereafter meet with quibbling or denial. I suppose that to the majority the principal cause against Mr. James, as alleged in his professional capacity was this matter of ingram's. I understand that Mr. James asserts that the letter addressed to the defendant, saking of him a sum of money, referred to that defendant's subscription towards the political expenses of the campaign, to which allowed his port that it cannot be hereafter controverted in the least.

Mr. James.—That letter referred to the offer which Mr. Ingram, as a member of the committee for conducting my election, made to me to join with four other gentlemen, and advance the sum of a thousand pounds. He made that offer to me personally, in the dining room of the House of Commens.

Mr. Shieparde.—There is only one other matter that I desire to give expression to, and that is that I believe that the gentlemen who have moved in the matter before the Supreme Court, in reference to Mr. James' admission, have been actuated, not by improper motives, but by a desire the fustice should be done. While, as Americans, we welcome tained and genies from all rations of the world, we knew that in the struggle in which we have been engaged against the rebellion nothing in this world but the morality of the people, the sense of justice residing in them, has carried us triumphantly through. And so we wish the bar of New York to stand high on these grounds, and we are jealous, and rightly so, of its hone; and everything that may by any means impuga that he nor we will invostigate. And I only wish to say to Mr. James, and to any one clas who may hereafter be similarly circumstanced, that the motives of the gentlemen from whom these motions emanated should not be impugued, and the verdict in this case may be like that in the case of Thomas Addis Emmett, which was instanced by Mr. James. These gentlemen are open to conviction; all they wish is the truth, and I believe that the committee will be the first at the bar to extend the right hand of fellowship to Mr. James.

The resolution of Mr. White and that of Mr. Chatfield were then agreed to.

Mr. Malican Campella offered the following resolution:—

Were then agreed to.

Mr. Malclan Carrenal offered the following resolution:—

Resolved, That the committee, of which Mr. Daniel Lord is chairham, not having derived their authority from any meeting of the bar of New York, or any body or association connected therewith, after any notice given of their proposed action in reference to Mr. James, have no authority to represent, and do not to fact represent the sentiments of the lead refression of this city, either in the manner or substance of their proceeding naminal Mr. James; that such proceeding being confessedly founded not upon charges affecting Mr. James character since he was admitted by the proper tribunal as a members he was admitted, but the proper tribunal as a members of the magnantity and interactly of our profession and our people and savors strongly of persecution; that the bar of New York claims to select the guardians of its honor and reputation and that we regulate the unsolited and self-constituted guardianship of the coamittee referred to.

The resolution was then adopted.

Judge Hzanze—Befora you adjourn I think it due to myself to make some explanation to the bar, hasmuch as it was on my certificate that Mr. Edwin James was admitted to the bar. It has been suggested, and, I am told, stated, that I had no knowledge of Mr. James until his arrival in this country. Gentlemen, my acquaintance with Mr. James commenced seventeen years ago, in the city of Lendon, and during seven years of that time I had an intimate acquaintance with Mr. James, both professional and personal. I watched his career. At that time he was a rising young man; and when I left London—some ten years ago—and came to your hospitable shore, I left him in the zenita of his fame. I recollect well how he worked his way and as I said before, when I left bondon, the years ago—and came to your hospitable shore, I left him in the zenita of his fame. I recollect well how he worked his way against, I might almost say, the frowns of the bank and the his own indomitable talent, he worked Detective Tiemann, who left the city on Friday with Radski, the alleged murderer of Fellner, arrived at Freehold, New Jersey, about six o'clock in the evening, and handed his prisoner over to Mr. McLeon, District Attorney of Monmouth county. Radski, during the trip, seemed rather downcast, and on his arrival at Freshold lerably uneasy, saving that he felt it would be a long while before he would be out again. He was im-mediately delivered into the custody of the jail keeper. mediately delivered into the custody of the jall keeper, and committed to Monmouth county jail to await his trial. A very comfortable cell was provided him, and there is no doubt but that he will receive better attention than were he as inmate of our City Prison.

Ex-Judge Stewart, who has been retained as counsel for the prisoner, has obtained some important information which, it is said, will fully show that Radski is not the alleged murderer, but that other parties, not before suspected, are implicated in the horrible tragedy.

Negotiations are at present pending between the Beard of Commissioners having charge of the buildings in the upper parties of the Central Park, known as the Mount St. Vincent Academy, formerly occupied by the Sisters of Charity, and the sub-committee of the Joint Special Committee of the Common Council on National Special Committee of the Common Council on National Adians. The object of the committee is to secure the buildings for the purcose of establishing a permanent home for wounded soldiers, where those requiring several months or a year's care to be some convolvescent may be taken care of. The buildings are remarkably well adapted for the purpose, and would, it is supposed, accommodate about six hundled mon, while the location, away from the noise and beath of the city, and exposed on all sides to salubrious and health-restoring breezes, cannot be surpassed.

Parson Brownlow in Brooklyn. The heroic Parson Brownlow appeared perore a Brook-lyn audience last evening. The Academy of Music was growded to its greatest capacity, and many gentlemen

Parson spoke. The band of the North Carolina was in attendance and played several patriotic pieces. The stage was througed by many of the principal citizens of the sister city, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. The veteran detender of the Union was received with tremendous applause, and for several minutes it was impossible for him to speak. Three cheers were proposed for Parson Brownlow and given with a will after which there was another enthusiastic outburst of Parson Brownlow began his speech by saying that he had no girt of cloquence, although he had heen accustomed to public speaking for the last thirty-five years. He had nover been neutral on any question in his life. He reviewed the progress of the rebellion in the slave states, and analyzed the desperate and bloothirsty surit which animates the leaders of the rebellion, and estated a series of atrocities in the South scarcely realizable. The speech which we laid before the readers of the Herald, however, contained nearly all of these instances, and, with but few exceptions, was one with the Parson's discourse has evening. He expressed his undaying and unfailerly devotion to the Union, and declared it to be his intention to return to his Southern home and fight the ruffians there to the bitter end. He had faith in Llucoin and the people to suppress the rebellion. That done, let England and France come on, and we will whip them, too; especially old John Bull, for sending his Ir. Russell here to carry water on both shoulders, as England has always been doing. He did not like such impodence anyhow, and he would rather have a fuss with John Bull than not.

The Parson was loudly choseed throughout his speech and on retiring. The relation of his experience in the rison in which he was confined was peculiarly interesting, and throughout he spoke with much feeling, energy and animation.
